Approved Provider:

Lower Burdekin Home for the Aged Society

Residential Aged Care Facility:

Home Hill Hostel

Summary of the Service:

Accredited residential aged care services located in the townships of Ayr and Home Hill in North Queensland. The Lower Burdekin Home for the Aged Society (LBHA) has been providing its services to the Burdekin community since 1973 having commenced with retirement living.

LBHA now has 173 places available to the community supporting its residents with their individual care needs. Infrastructure building programs are continuing with the aim to provide relaxing and secure surroundings appropriately supporting a diverse range of low, high and dementia care within a small community environment.

LBHA's history and long established position within the Burdekin has seen it secure its status as an essential local service. It has strong network links to local allied health services and local government all of which underpin the reputation for care LBHA has worked so hard to build.

LBHA has managed to artfully blend the work environment for its staff and its many volunteers with a fierce support for the independence of our residents, their rights and recognition of the space as their home.

Described in the following service summary is the style of room presently available. Rooms will differ in appearance and age, however the core values of our service do not. That is
